

What has changed? (Medium, values, ideas, subject matter)	What has changed is that the artworks had very personal meanings. "Le Déjeuner sur l'herbe" was trying to act against something to prove a point, "The Last Judgement" was trying to say that you alone are in control of your actions, and the people who made the video may just have made it for social acceptance. In conclusion, the intentions were what changed.
What stayed the same? (Medium, values, ideas, subject matter)	What has stayed the same is that they are all trying to get through to someone somehow. The artworks have sort of a main idea that they want to get through, and the video is trying to draw people in and entertain people so that they will keep watching.
